Georgia is a country with a rich history. In antique myths it was known as the country of “the golden fleece”, Argonauts and the refuge of the rebellious Prometheus. As long as ten centuries B.C. an intense trade was held on the territory of Georgia. Finickier traders penetrated here on their ships from the Mediterranean. A century later the Greeks appeared, who learnt the skill of ore smelting from the native inhabitants.

The nature of the country is unparalleled- humid subtropics of the Black Sea coast, diversity and wealth of mountain forests, rich pastures of the Alpine zone, curative mineral springs. People come to Georgia for treatment, for rest and traveling. Those, who visit it, may observe the pictures of all seasons in several days: ice-capped mountain peaks, new grass, just beginning to shoot on foothills, a hot summer among evergreen palm-trees.

Georgia is rightfully considered an original fine cuisine and ancient motherland of grape wine. Viticulture is cultivated in most of its countryside regions. Thick, resinous, pomegranate — red and golden-amber colored wines of Kakheti, light, crystal, sparkling wines of West Georgia, champagne and branded cognacs are world famous.

The Glory of Georgia are its resorts. There are over 220 of them – high mountainous (Bakuriani, Gudauri etc) and sea-side, good for treatment and climatic ones. Most of them function all the year round.

Nobody can remain indifferent to Tbilisi – a city with a population of a million and a half. The capital of Georgia is one of the greatest industrial and cultural centers of the country. “Tbilisi” in Georgian mean “warm”. Tbilisi is actually a warm, kind, very hospitable city. The hospitable Georgia is always ready to receive foreign visitors, who can rest, improve their health, and get ineffaceable impressions here.
